CAUGHT A SHIP ON A SURF BOARD

"Speaking about Hawaiians as sailors, did you ever hear the story of the native boy who overtook a ship on a surf board?" questioned Captain U. S. G. White at the Naval Station the other day. "The story was told to me some time ago, and bears out the opinion that I have always had that the Hawaiian makes a good sailor."

"It was told to me about this way. A native boy, who was also an expert surf board rider, shipped on an American ship bound for Japan or China, some years ago. The vessel was lumber laden, also carrying a deck load. A gale blew up and the native boy was washed overboard. Some of the lumber on the deck was washed away by the same wave and the boy managed to get hold of a board. Utilizing his knowledge of surf board riding, which he had gained in the islands, the sailor caught the next big wave and rode on the crest of it overtaking the vessel, catching hold of a rope hanging from the side and clambering aboard again, almost before the ship's officers knew he had been lost overboard, and before they had time to lower a boat for his rescue. It might have been impossible to lower a boat because of the gale, but anyway the boy saved them the trouble of doing this."

"I don't think the story is at all improbable, when you see what feats the natives can perform with the surf boards here. The vessel was going right in the teeth of the gale, and it was natural that the waves should be swept right by her. So it would not have been such a difficult matter for an experienced surf board rider to overtake a vessel of that kind. I don't believe such a thing to be impossible by any means."

More Coal Ships Arrive.

Two more coal vessels got in yesterday from Newcastle. The Abby Palmer, 53 days out, had 2546 tons of coal. The Norwegian bark Sigurd made the run in 44 days. She had 2450 tons of coal for W. G. Irwin & Co.

The Abby Palmer came near being lost a few months ago at Newcastle. She was blown away from her anchorage during a gale and carried out to sea. A part of her crew was aboard and she was brought back into port. She was not loaded at the time and almost turned turtle. The Palmer sighted a bark off Lanai Friday which is thought to be the West York, now 71 days from Newcastle.

Durrant's Launch Scuttled.

J. A. Durrant found his gasoline launch resting on the bottom of the harbor yesterday morning, when he went out to see how the Regatta Day weather was. Durrant bailed the launch out in short order and he had it ready for business long before it was needed. He found that some one had bored a hole through the stern of the boat, and he says he knows who did it. Prosecution may follow.

Quiet on the Front.

There was not much doing on the waterfront yesterday and nearly all the vessels in port were decked out in their holiday finery in honor of Regatta Day. Such vessels as were in position to allow a view of the races, had open house for Regatta Day visitors. The Kinan and Helene arrived early yesterday morning, and were given quick dispatch in order that the crews might witness the races.

Gaelic Has Cheap Cargo.

The Gaelic was far down in the water when she was here Friday. She is loaded down with flour for the Orient, carrying it at the rate of a dollar per ton. The China Commercial Co., has not as yet met the cut.

HAS FORMED HIGH REGARD FOR THE PEOPLE OF HAWAII

Harry Robinson, a Former Louisville Man, Returns Home for a Short Visit--Believes in the Future of the Islands.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: Harry Robinson, who has been practicing law in Honolulu for the past two years, has returned to this city. He talks entertainingly of his experiences. He is enthusiastic over Hawaii and will return the middle of October.

"The prospects for a young man are fine," he said. "The future of the islands is in sugar, as they furnish almost half of that commodity to the world, and the young man who has a business head has a wonderful opportunity. Fortunes are won in a short time and business is flourishing. The natural advantages are unequalled. Honolulu itself is a city of about 50,000 inhabitants and is set in a paradise. On all sides is the Pacific ocean and the climate varies between 85 and 60 degrees the year around. As you approach and round Diamond Head, a huge extinct volcano, you pass the Waikiki resort, where the inhabitants of Honolulu take their outing. The city is on a beautiful harbor and slopes gradually back. Three extinct volcanoes overhang it. They are the Punch Bowl, Tantalus and Diamond Head. At the time of the Martinique disaster, reports had it that the people of Honolulu were panic-stricken. However, they never had a tremor. The volcanoes have been extinct for 400 years, and hardly a thought is given them. An eruption would doubtless bury the city, but the snake is considered dead. The health of the people is remarkable. There is practically no consumption, and the fever does not flourish to any great extent. Business is lively and sugar is the chief commodity. Oranges have been tried and their cultivation has failed. Limes grow in wild profusion and great profit is made in their exportation."

"Back of the city is a precipice of historic interest. Pali, it is called, and the legend goes that there King Kamehameha, the first of the royal line, made sure his title to the throne and brought the eight islands under one ruler by a decisive battle. He met the army of his opponents and hurled them 1,500 feet over the precipice, crashing on the rocks below. Today tourists stand on the rugged brow and view the whole of the possessions the strategy of the first king won. At his name every true Hawaiian bares his head."

"Some take kindly to Uncle Sam's rule. Some do not. They are about evenly divided, but the recent election of Prince Cupid to the American Senate was a triumph of American ideas and interests. Robert W. Wilcox, who was a native and stood for the old order of things, is an excellent man and was considered invincible. The election was close and exciting, but Prince Cupid won. He will go to the next session of Congress. Prince Cupid is a fine specimen of manhood. He is wealthy and possesses a handsome wife. He is a born politician and has a gift of oratory rarely excelled. Great things are expected of him when he gets on the floor."

"There are still patriots, and they are not few, who long for the old order of things. They loved their Queen and their islands, and feel themselves jostled out by all this American bustle and energy. They are still sensitive and hurt that Congress has not provided for their Queen, who is rather hard pressed financially."

"The women there are the finest specimens of women I have ever seen. They are beautiful, well molded, and are refined. The men are all athletes and are finely proportioned. The pure natives are fast disappearing by intermarriage."

"As a possession, the Hawaiian Islands will pay beyond a doubt. They are a natural base of supplies, a good military port, a fine coaling station and have excellent natural advantages. They serve as a door into this country from the Orient. The sugar there is produced in more abundance to the acre than in any other country in the world. The inhabitants like not the exclusion of Chinese, as the labor was cheap and greatly reduced the cost of production of the article. They want all the Chinese immigrants they can get. The politics there is as clean as any I have ever seen. The real great men seldom engage, but little trickery is done, and the voting is usually straight and open. The islands are all connected by a system of telegraphy, and the result of an election is soon widespread. When Prince Cupid was elected it was known by 10 o'clock that night all over the eight islands."

"The government is honest and well organized and conducted. Sanford B. Dole is Governor and is upright, conscientious and high-minded. He was appointed by the late President McKinley and is an American. Prior to his appointment he was the president of the provisional government."

"In Honolulu every language almost on the globe is spoken. There are often from four to five interpreters in court when a case is argued. English is the standard language. The judicial department of the islands is excellent. The Supreme Court, composed of three judges, is honest and has the respect of every citizen. The Circuit Judges are able men and solid lawyers. The best known are Judges Robinson, De Bolt and Gill. The bar, which has about seventy members, is wide-awake and has shrewd and able lawyers on its rolls. He who goes out to practice law with the expectation that he will find an easy thing will be sadly mistaken. Lorrin A. Andrews, who is an American, and has been Attorney-General for about ten months, has won his way to the front by hard and consistent effort and his ability is universally recognized. He has been in the islands only four years."

KAMEHAMEHAS ARE BASEBALL CHAMPIONS.

MAILES VS. ELKS.

Maile went to bat and Kaai gave Fernandez his base. On a wild pitch he got to third. Hardee struck out and Clark was given his base but went out stealing second. Meanwhile Fernandez came home. White and Jones took their base but Jones was caught at second. So far not a man had hit the ball.

THIRD INNING.

Hardee went out, second to first. Clark struck out and Kennedy gathered in White's foul fly. Gorman made a base hit but it did no good as the next man, Moore, popped an easy foul into White's hands who threw to first before Gorman could regain his base. Kennedy flew out to second.

FOURTH INNING.

Jones was out on an easy grounder and Hardee on a fly to Moore. Clark followed Jones's example.

Knight got to first on a dead ball and reached second on a wild pitch. Cheatem struck out and the men on bases moved up on a passed ball. Kaai hit safely bringing in Knight and Meyer. Larsen hit to left but Wright muffed and Kaai came in. Gorman reached first on an error by shortstop. Moore struck out.

SIXTH INNING.

Hardee connected with the ball for a two base hit and Clark sacrificed. White hit to left bringing Hardee home, but went out himself at second. Larsen was out, pitcher to first, and Gorman was safe on an error by Deas. Moore flew out to center and Gorman stole his home base. Kennedy out, second to first.

SEVENTH INNING.

Deas flew out to third. Wright made a base hit and McFarlane struck out. Anderson was safe on an error by centerfield. Fernandez hit bringing in Wright, and Hardee was out on a fly to pitcher.

EIGHTH INNING.

Clark was good for a base hit. White took his base and Jones flew out to center field. Deas made the hit of the game. He landed a three-bagger and Clark and White crossed the plate. Kaai hit Wright who took his base. McFarlane hit forcing Deas off third. The latter made a good attempt to come home but was caught by Myers. Anderson tied the score with a hit to right bringing Wright and McFarlane across the plate. Anderson however went out stealing second.

Gorman reached first on an error by Deas and took second on a wild pitch. Larsen sacrificed. Gorman made a base hit and Taylor came in. Moore forced Gorman who went out at second. Kennedy was safe on Jones's error, but Knight flew out to Jones.

NINTH INNING.

Hardee hit a foul to catcher and Clark was given his base. White struck out. Clark got to third on a wild throw of Gorman. Jones had the last chance to do anything but he went out on a grounder to Meyer and the game ended with the score nine to seven in favor of the Elks.

THE PHELPS HAD A GERMAN CREW

The crew of the Erskine M. Phelps was paid off yesterday in the Shipping Commissioner's office. The crew of the Phelps without exception was composed of Germans. Only one man among the bunch could speak English at all and he was utilized as an interpreter. He also happened to be a "sea lawyer." None of the crew made a complaint to the Commissioner and all seemed to have received the best of treatment on the voyage around the Horn.

Hit by Pitcher—Knight, Wright. Struck Out—By Kaai 6, by Hardee 4. Bases on Balls—Kaai 8, Hardee 1. Wild Pitches—Hardee 3, Kaai 1. Passed Ball—White 1.

Sheldon went out, shortstop to first. Lemon made a base hit. Jones hit to left field but Gleason let the ball pass and Lemon came home. Jones however was caught running for first. Vanatta flew out to shortstop.
